Executive Director’s Message

Old Places as an Anchor

I have come to realize that the world is catching on to the idea that old places have economic merit.

Finally, after nearly 24 years in the business of working to support the vitalization of a historic area, there is a growing recognition of the concept that economic development and preservation can go hand in hand. A concept I have long believed in and which has served as a guiding force for my efforts.

In this field of preservation, there is often a notion that old places and old things should be put on a shelf and reserved for enjoying on special occasions. Old places suffer under that paradigm. They do best when they become again and again a part of the fabric of our lives. So many old places stagnate behind chain link fences, boarded windows or shuttered doors, and signs that say “not open” merely waiting for someone to bring them back to life. Sadly, they can quickly lose their meaning as the generations who once loved them pass away and the newly arrived generations deem them “old, out of style, weird and in the way.”

To maintain their meaning and access is perhaps the greatest gift we can give old places. To ensure their livelihood is protected by ensuring the economics surrounding those initiatives are well considered is a must.

Aside for the emerging discovery that preservation is good for a community’s bottom line, I also see that old places like the Mission can serve as the anchors of a community’s identity. Old places are cool not because they are old, but because they continue to express something special.

Often I find myself struggling to convey the point that old historic and religious places like the Mission not only celebrate a history but can also become or provide a new history for those people without one or those that wish they had a better personal history. Those whose families are broken, or whose lives have endured deep loss, face an illness or look for inspiration, can come to a place like this mission and fall in love with the concept of a nostalgia they never had. Their new history can include becoming a volunteer or worker and in doing so graduate from the experience with their own personal and unique meaning for the place as well.

I find myself still—after nearly 12 years working to promote the concept that sustainability, protectionism and relevance are ideals we must strive for in this field—pushing the point that for the landmark to last forever, it must be fiercely guarded but also be independent. It must always be on a strong financial path of transparency and sustainability and be served by a local community that not only cares, but also realizes that it is in the best interest of the greater good to do so.

This past year, the Mission endured the negative impacts of a state highway’s construction, intense development applications at its shadow, and the misunderstandings of some that it is just a sleepy little landmark that belongs to just a few. In the words of author Margaret Wise Brown to her Mister Dog character, she writes to the dog, “you belong to yourself” -- but in this instance I say to the Mission, “you belong to the world,” and in this year, the eye of your founder’s sainthood, “you belong to those that make it possible.”

Thank you for your part in making the Mission matter and giving people an anchor, a history and a community identity that mean something.

See you on the path,

Mechelle Lawrence Adams
Executive Director, Mission San Juan Capistrano

Dedicated to my amazing husband Joe Adams, an anchor as well, with congrats on Discovery Cube Orange County’s expansion and grand opening!
Sala Preservation Project on Schedule for Completion this Fall

The three-phased preservation effort of the original 18th century building and adjoining Sacred Garden and Bell Wall is on schedule for completion in September 2015. This historic building has served as padres quarters, a chapel, a home and a curio shop and will be showcasing the new and upcoming Father Serra exhibit which debuts this fall.

The overall cost for this project is $750,000 and is funded through private donations, grants, Mission Preservation Society membership, and proceeds from operations and the Mission Store.

Project highlights to date have included the successful completion of the interior of the Refectory room and the following:

- Cleaning and stabilization of finishes of the historic ceiling
- Removal of previous gift store furnishings and cabinet doors
- Installation of breathable perimeter at base of walls
- Rehabilitation of tile floor
- Removal of all abandoned surface mounted conduit, low-voltage wiring, and fixtures/devices
- Adobe and crack repairs at interior and exterior of Refectory
- Lime based plaster repairs at interior of Refectory
- Installation of adobe mud plaster at exterior of Refectory, east wall
- Lime wash and parge coat to match existing color and texture of Sala
- Repointing of brick masonry of Sala
- Removal of all inappropriate cement repairs
- Termite treatment of exposed exterior wood beam ends
- Infrared thermal imaging and arc fault/flash hazard analysis report of existing electrical equipment
- Audio/visual upgrades to Sala room

The Sala Preservation Project continues to completion this summer with the remaining scope of work:

- Roof upgrades
- Sacred Garden fountain repair
- Moisture mitigation / site work
- Seismic retrofit upgrades

The completed project will ensure that the historic Sala and Refectory buildings will be preserved for future generations to enjoy and will serve as host to the Father Serra exhibit opening in time for Serra’s canonization this fall.

SUMMER 2015 | THE JEWEL
New! Father Serra Exhibit Debuts in Fall

Mission San Juan Capistrano is honored to debut its newest exhibit opening this Fall in time for the September canonization ceremony making Blessed Father Serra a Saint.

The Blessed Father Serra exhibit will be on display in the recently conserved historic Sala building which dates back to the mission’s founding period in the 1790s.

Father Serra is a significant historical and liturgical figure whose work pioneered the framework of modern California. From San Diego to the Golden Gate Bridge of San Francisco, his early mission settlements grew to become metropolitan cities.

During his time in California, he established nine missions, and about 5,000 Native Americans were baptized into the Catholic faith. Even after his death, Serra’s religious legacy has continued to unfold. Serra’s historical significance led Californians to select him as one of two people to represent the state in the U.S. Capitol Building’s Statuary Hall since 1931.

The exhibit will explore Serra’s early life as a scholar, his journey to the Americas, his missionary training in establishing nine of the 21 California missions, his legacy and his significant role at Mission San Juan Capistrano.

Mission San Juan Capistrano still holds many documents, artifacts and buildings that Serra personally used or occupied during his visits. Two historic buildings on the grounds date to the time of Serra’s last visit: the Serra Chapel, the only remaining mission church in which Serra celebrated Mass, and the South Wing Building where Father Serra likely stayed in during his visit.

Artifacts that will be on display in the exhibit include a statue of Father Serra by Juan de Avalos (1896), 18th century Spanish painting of Our Lady of Refuge, the Patroness of both Californias, the Mission’s original baptismal shell used by Serra, a reproduction of the cross Serra wore and was buried with, and more.

Stay tuned for the opening of the Father Serra exhibit debuting this fall 2015.

Join our HOPE for the POPE Campaign!

Father Junipero Serra (1713 - 1784) was founder of the first nine of the 21 California missions including Mission San Juan Capistrano in 1776. A man of uncompromised optimism and zeal, Father Serra played a significant role in establishing the mission system and laying a foundation for what would become the state of California.

Pope Francis will canonize Father Serra in the fall of 2015, and it is our hope that he will visit Mission San Juan Capistrano in this historic year, a place built under the soon-to-be saint’s leadership.

The Sacred Garden: Mission San Juan Capistrano’s Most Romantic Spot
By Megan Dukett, Education & Interpretive Program Manager

Nestled behind the Bell Wall or campanario sits the Sacred Garden. For ninety-five years, the small archway entrance has ushered guests into the Mission’s most romantic spot. Although small, the enclosed space is powerful with the textured walls of the buildings that enclose it, the simplistic fountain, and the richness of the historic bells. For some, the Sacred Garden is a space of inspiration, and for others a place which holds personal memories especially for couples as there are routinely declarations of love, marriage proposals, and connections in this small treasured space.

Most do not realize the Sacred Garden has a unique origin. The man who envisioned and built the Sacred Garden helped bring the Mission back to life. Father St. John O’Sullivan (1874-1933) arrived in 1910. He was the first resident priest Mission San Juan Capistrano had in twenty years. During his tenure (1910-1933) he ushered in a time of renewal and preservation. He joined the Landmarks Clubs and oversaw the preservation of the Serra Chapel, fundraised for restoration by charging an admission fee, designed the gardens, and even started the Mission’s annual tradition of St. Joseph’s Day and the Return of the Swallows Celebration.

One of Father O’Sullivan’s many contributions to the Mission was the completion of the Sacred Garden where he added the now iconic archways. He turned a weed infested space between buildings into a place of reflection. Upon its completion in 1920, the hidden garden behind the Bell Wall turned into a sacred space for Mission guests and has been so for nearly 100 years.

Coming Soon! Mission’s History and Commemorative Guide
Mission San Juan Capistrano has been at the root of early California history for more than 238 years, and it will all be reflected upon in an official commemorative guide that will be released this year in the fall.

The new guide book, published by Beckon Books, will highlight the Mission’s history as a Spanish colonial mission, a private ranch home, a historic landmark, and a museum.

With information on rare artifacts, history and more, the book will vividly tell the story of Mission San Juan Capistrano’s founding and its importance as the birthplace of Orange County, its historical significance as the seventh of 21 missions statewide, and its most unique and treasured space, the Serra Chapel, the only remaining church in California in which Blessed Junipero Serra -- who will become a saint later this year -- once celebrated Mass. The book will be available for purchase online and at the Mission Store.

Help Us Preserve Father Serra’s Legacy
Join our efforts with the nonprofit Save Father Serra organization to help save the Father Serra Statue in the National Statuary Hall Collection. Romance of the Mission named “Best Fêtes in Orange County”
by Modern Luxury’s Riviera Orange County magazine, March 2015

The Mission Preservation Foundation cordially invites you to share in its most magical evening of the year, the Romance of the Mission, in support of the much-needed conservation efforts at historic Mission San Juan Capistrano.

To date, Montana Sporting Club, Farmers & Merchants Bank, and The Residence Inn San Juan Capistrano have joined The Ritz-Carlton, Laguna Niguel, in supporting and celebrating 2015 Romance of the Mission honorees Bette and Wylie Aitken for their mutual ongoing, generous care of historic Mission San Juan Capistrano.

“Bette and I are truly honored and humbled to be the 2015 Romance of the Mission honorees,” Wylie Aitken said. “In the year of Father Serra’s canonization, it causes reflection on how this iconic mission has truly become ‘the jewel’ which has positively touched so many lives.”

Guests will enjoy an exclusive pre-concert cocktail reception held in the Mission Front Gardens before being called to enjoy a rare concert in the Ruins of the Great Stone Church. This year’s concert features award-winning New York vocalists Scott Coulter, Lee Lessack, and John Boswell as they pay homage to Frank Sinatra performing “That’s Life!” A Toast to Sinatra on His 100th Birthday! “That’s Life!” celebrates the hit songs that took Sinatra from crooner to swinger to icon and in doing so showcases a variety of historical American music proudly.

“We are thrilled to be performing at this most glorious and historic site to celebrate one of the greatest entertainers of our time on such a magical night under the stars,” Lessack said. “We can’t think of anything better!”

That evening, the historic bells will ring in celebration of the upcoming canonization of Blessed Junipero Serra, the Mission’s Founder. Guests will enjoy a post-concert candlelight four-course plated dinner in the Central Courtyard exquisitely hosted by long-time Mission supporter, The Ritz-Carlton, Laguna Niguel.
